

Damflask

Follow the water's edge in the heart of Sheffield's Lakeland. Section on pavement and on the road, if linking to Low Bradfield.

Access For All Route:

- 1 Start at the south end of the dam where a path leads to the reservoir side.
- 2 Continue to the tactile interpretation panel at the access point.
- 3 Continue to where the path drops down to the shore with a ramp to the water's edge.

Access For Many Route:

- 1 Keep left at the turn off to the ramp and continue via a series of undulations, before levelling out and continuing to the edge of Low Bradfield.

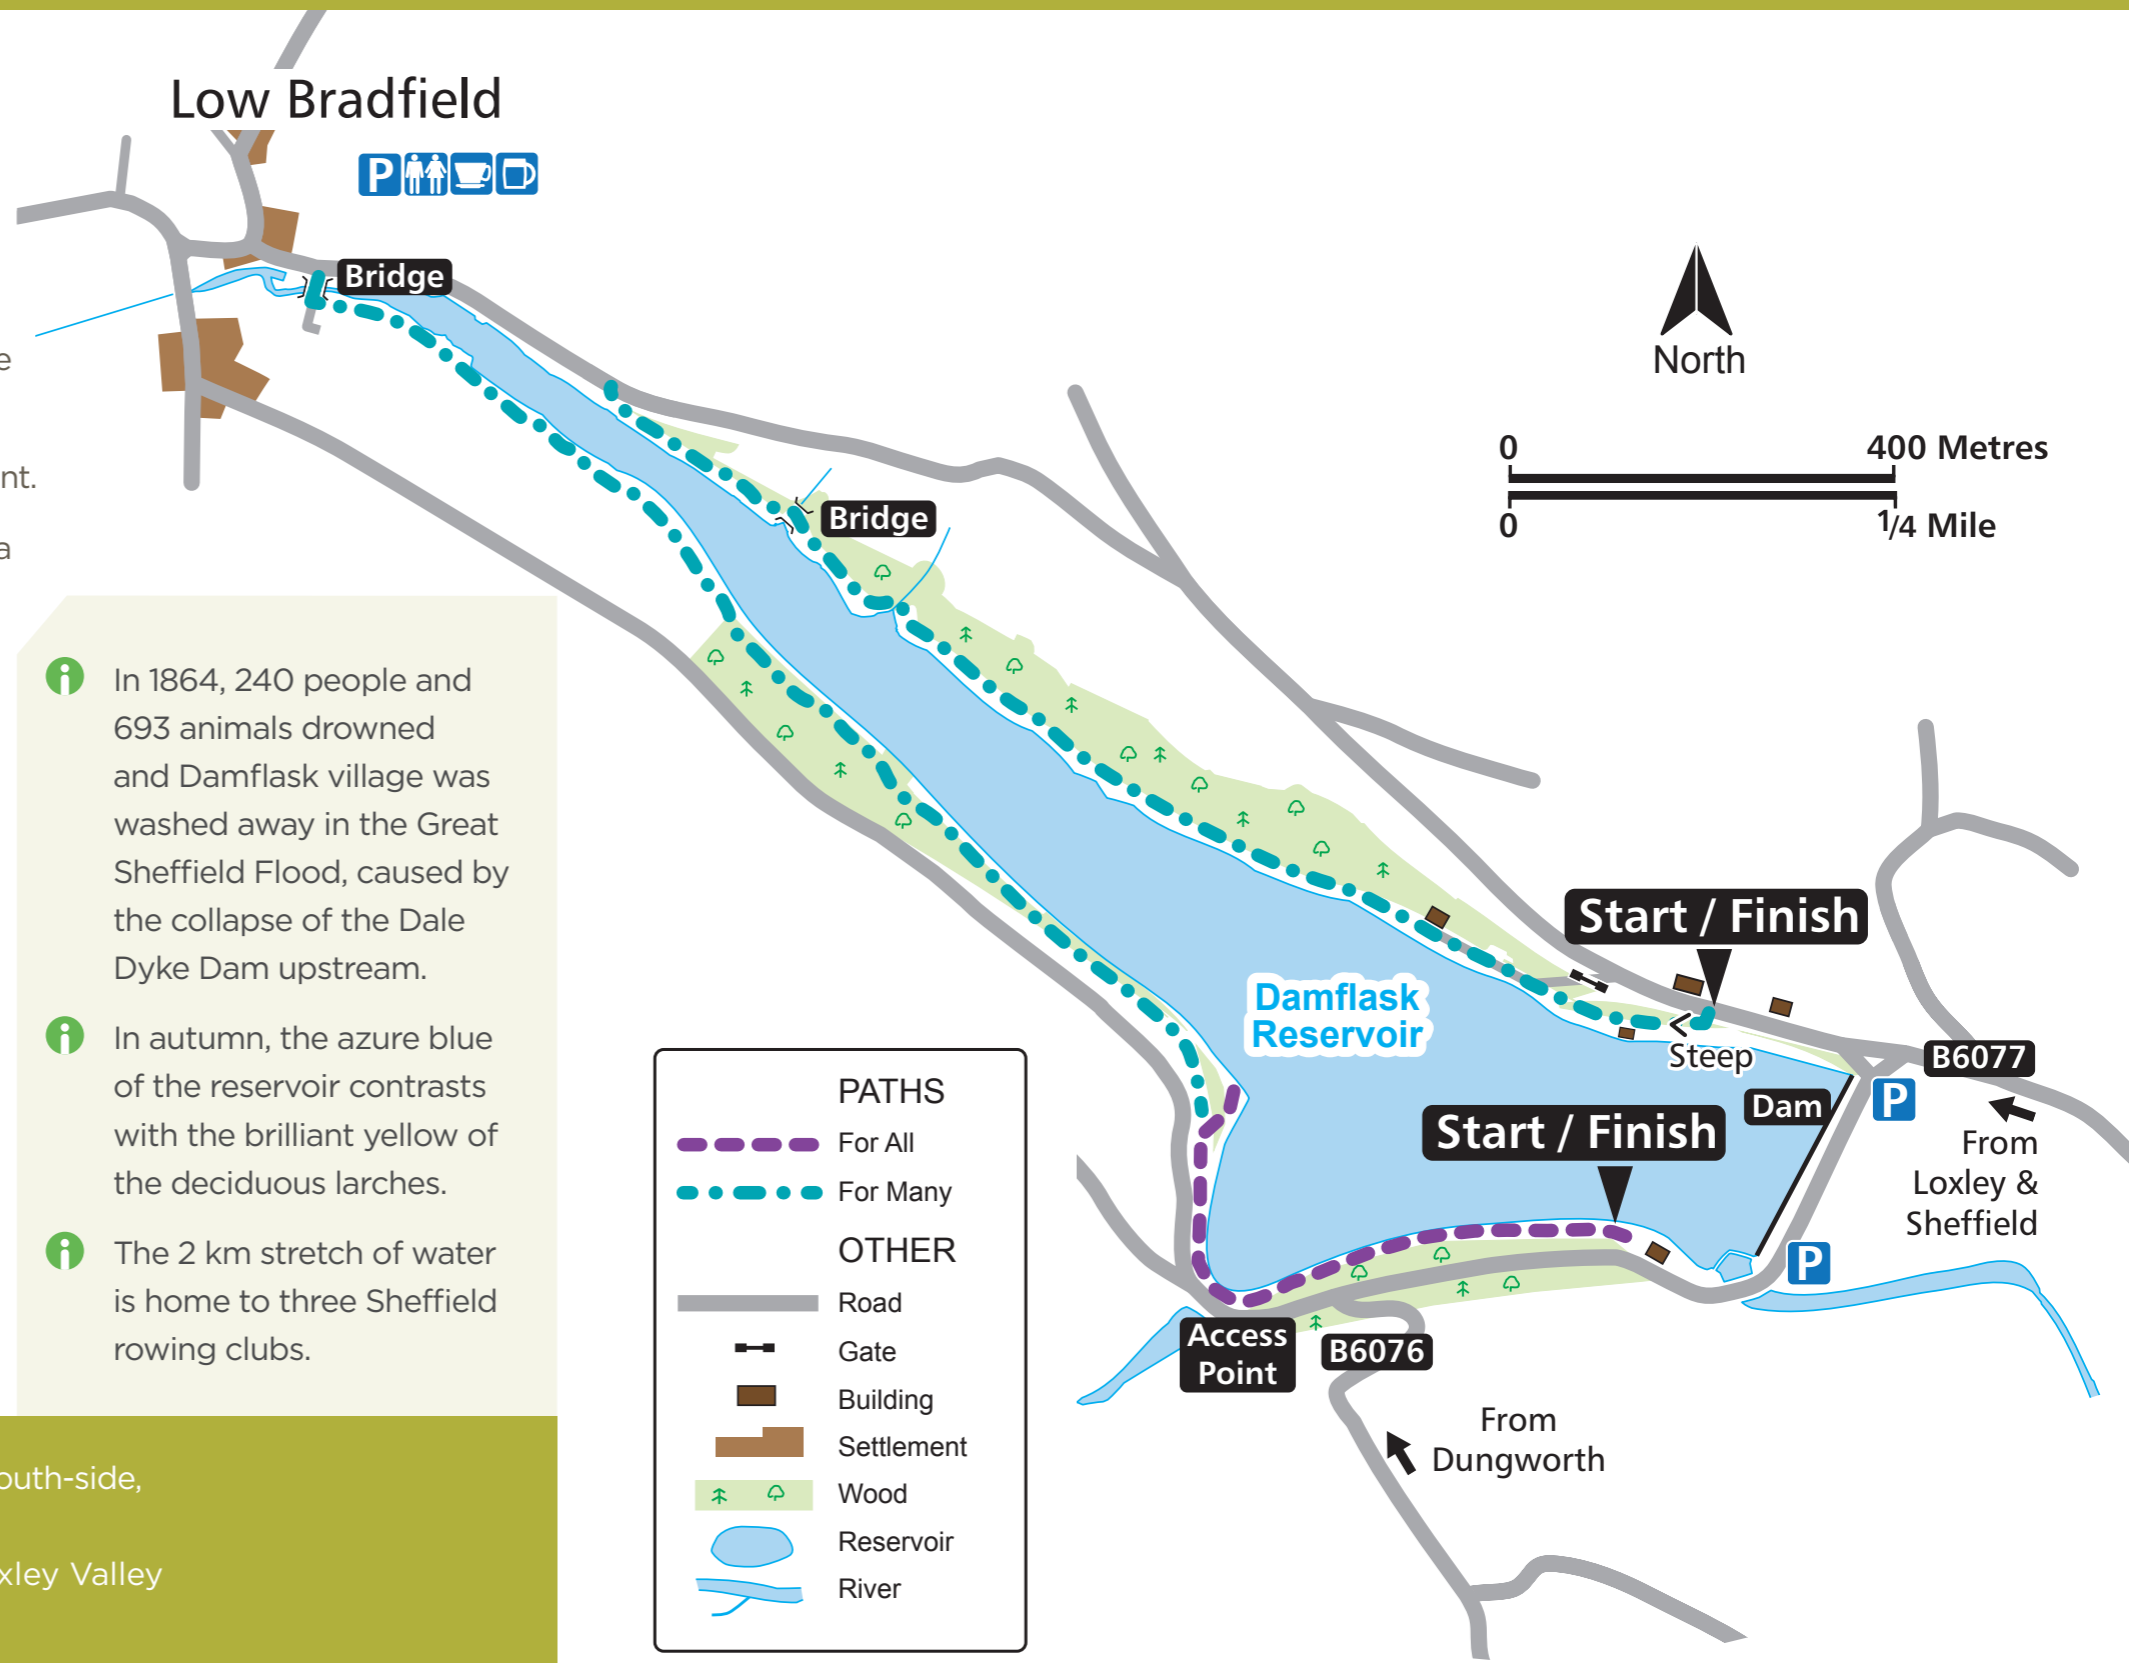

Or

- 1 Start at the north end of the dam where a steep slope leads down to the reservoir side.
- 2 Pass the sailing club and continue to where the road is met near Low Bradfield.

Alternative:

Beware passing traffic if the decision is made to continue along the road to Low Bradfield or to join the other track.

Distance: 820 m to the ramp, an additional 1.7 km south-side, 1.7 km north-side
Start Point: Damflask Dam, via the B6077 in the Loxley Valley
OS Grid Ref: SK 2841 9067
Post Code: S6 6SQ
Nearest Facilities: Low Bradfield

- i In 1864, 240 people and 693 animals drowned and Damflask village was washed away in the Great Sheffield Flood, caused by the collapse of the Dale Dyke Dam upstream.
- i In autumn, the azure blue of the reservoir contrasts with the brilliant yellow of the deciduous larches.
- i The 2 km stretch of water is home to three Sheffield rowing clubs.

© Crown copyright and database rights 2019
Ordnance Survey 0100022750